Project Manager, Operations

The Project Manager will steer major initiatives from start to release, coordinating the efforts of various Nodal stakeholders: technology, account management, marketing, finance, risk, operations, legal, and compliance. The Project Manager will be responsible for gathering feedback to construct the project plan and timeline, and for communicating regular updates to the key stakeholders regarding progress, roadblocks, and any challenges to meeting timelines.

In addition, they must be effective communicators, so that key stakeholders understand and can react in real time to decision requirements, but Project Managers must also be effective problem solvers, as they not only collect and synthesize feedback from the stakeholders but offer alternative paths forward based on their own insights from the unique vantage point they occupy.
